Houston, Texas – July 26, 2006 -- Anything's Possible Aviation, Inc, a leading national helicopter company, announced the expansion of their current operations in Houston, Texas to include a new training facility and second office location at Weiser Air Park

The new facility will host access to a million dollar inventory of Robinson R22 & R44, helicopters, and an instructional facility to assist both private and commercial helicopter students. It will also serve as the new home for its centralized flight operations as well as sales and administrative offices.

David Lewis, Vice President, said: "Over the years we have experienced continued growth in our pilot instructional business. As a result it was necessary to procure additional space to accommodate this increased demand. The capability afforded by the two separate facilities will not only streamline our operations, but also bolster our efficiency. To further boost our productivity, we have increased our staff two-fold, and also made a sizeable aircraft investment".

Anything's Possible Aviation, Inc. was founded several years ago and specializes in helicopter support services to oil & gas pipeline companies, motion picture and aerial photography companies, agricultural operations, and law enforcement agencies and real estate sales and development companies.

Locally recognized for its personalized customer service, Anything's Possible Aviation's dedicated workforce provides round-the-clock support to customers operating Robinson Helicopters in North America and Central & South America.
