September 22, 2007

For immediate release – Buying a new computer can be both exciting and frustrating; exciting because you now have the latest in applications and drives, but frustrating because you have to move all of your important files from your old computer to your new one. Not only do you have to move them but you have to spend hours re-organizing them and getting them back into the order you like.

The award-winning software specialists at Tugboat Enterprises have just made that frustration go away! Using their new software program, Selkie Quick File Transfer (SQFT), you can capture all your documents, photos, graphics, music, and other files and move them across to your new computer in three simple key strokes.

Not only will you have your files, pictures and emails moved over in a matter of a few minutes, but you will have them in exactly the same order with the same date stamps as they appeared on your old computer! The best news is that you don't have to load Selkie Quick File Transfer onto either computer. This self-booting disk, available through a simple download on line will take care of the move. You can use it as often as you need it. Have disk, files will travel.

"This is an extremely practical program," said Chief Technology Officer Jonathan Lyster. "It's inexpensive and will save you many hours of frustration. It's worth every penny you pay."
