

FLEMING'S FUNDAMENTALS OF LAW

ONLINE

PERFORMANCE WORKSHOP FOR THE BAR EXAM

The Fleming's Fundamentals of Law (FFOL) ONLINE PERFORMANCE WORKSHOP is a home study program. This program combines the benefits of the FFOL live course with the advantage of studying at home, at work, or wherever you choose. All lectures are digitally recorded live for online streaming via the Internet, and are hosted through the Blackboard educational service.

As an online student, you receive the same performance lectures, materials, and writing assignments as those attending the live program. You e-mail your writing assignments to the FFOL offices for a CD critique by our staff lawyers.

The Performance Workshop is a course structured to teach you an effective step-by-step method for handling the Performance Exam. You will learn:

- How to identify the four types of Calls tested on the Performance Exam, which include legal considerations, proof and fact problems, tactical procedures, and ethical considerations;
- How to properly interpret the Calls of the question to determine which area of analysis is being tested;
- How to navigate through the exam materials to quickly identify issues raised by the Calls;
- How to set up and use an effective outline;
- How to identify and gather relevant factual and legal information from the Performance materials;
- How to effectively manage test time, and,
- How to successfully write the final answer, and much more.

This unique program gives you all of the tools to develop and implement the analytical, organizational, and writing skills necessary to produce a superior Performance answer and provides all the information you need to successfully pass the Performance Exam.

Common Questions and Answers

Q: What makes the FFOL Performance Workshop superior to other programs?

A: The most unique quality about FFOL Home Study Bar Review is its step-by-step method for handling the Performance exam. No other course compares. Further, every assigned simulated writing exam is graded and orally critiqued on CD by an experienced attorney. Each critique identifies your strengths and weaknesses and offers suggestions on how you can correct your weaknesses to achieve a passing grade on the bar. The program is designed to be interactive in every respect.

Q: What do I get with the Online Performance workshop?

A: You will receive eighteen hours of in-class instruction by a recognized expert who has taught the course for over twenty-seven years combined with a written Performance course outline that follows the lectures. You will be given two volumes of materials that include sixteen Performance exams, nine of which will be presented in-class as part of the lectures and seven more that you can write under simulated testing conditions. You then submit your assigned writing samples to our staff readers to critique. All Performance exam materials include written sample exam outlines and answers together with samples of actual student answers that were graded by the Committee of Bar Examiners.

Q: Why is the FFOL Online Performance Workshop schedule superior to other programs?

A: The Online Performance Workshop allows you to begin studying at any time. You may begin the course as early as a semester prior to Bar Review. This gives you a full semester of studying prior to the Bar Exam so that you may familiarize yourself with the Performance method and perfect your writing skills. This, combined with the features described above, gives you the most advanced program available to help you prepare for success on the Performance Exam.
