Source One Expands Midwest Support Capabilities with Official Opening of New Chicago Office

Prominent Procurement Services Provider expands strategic sourcing, supply chain, and procurement consulting practice with the opening of a new Chicago office location.

Chicago, IL (June 24, 2015) – This month, leading supply chain consulting firm Source One Management Services officially opens the doors to a new location in Chicago, Illinois. The move to a new and improved office space means greater capabilities for supporting clients with strategic sourcing, supply chain, and procurement management initiatives in the Midwest and continues the company’s strong performance and growth in recent years.

Headquartered in the suburbs of Philadelphia, Source One first expanded its physical presence to the “windy city” last summer to meet the growing needs of strategic sourcing and procurement clientele in the Midwest region. Business has been booming and capacity demands have continued to increase for sourcing and supply chain professionals. As such, Source One has moved into an even larger office located at 325 W. Huron St. Suite 207.

Source One’s Chicago resources will now occupy a historic multi-tenant office building located in the trend-setting neighborhood of River North, with its bright blend of culture, creativity, and entrepreneurship. Within blocks of high end shopping such as Neiman Marcus and Tiffany & Co., the newly renovated office space offers a modern workspace design including an open floor concept with collaborative work stations, telecommuting capabilities, and fully equipped video conferencing. The larger space also makes room for continued growth for both current and future staff, as the procurement services provider continues to onboard supply chain analysts, category management experts, contingent labor, and sourcing engineers.

“This is a very exciting and proud moment in Source One’s timeline. Chicago has always been an ideal location and this move is a critical milestone for our long-term growth plan in the industry. More and more companies are recognizing that this is a time to break the mold for the procurement outsourcing model, and our current and future clients in the Midwest region will benefit from an even higher level of support from our staff,” shared Source One CEO, Steven Belli.

Source One is committed to delivering clients results in their strategic sourcing and procurement initiatives. The expansion in Chicago reinforces Source One's leadership in the industry and offers greater resources and capabilities to the company's vast services portfolio including Contingency-Based Cost Reduction, Spend Management, Global Supplier Identification, Supplier Relationship Management, and Procurement Transformation Advisory. www.SourceOneInc.com.
