UNCONTAINABLE

The Container Yard Los Angeles Redefines the Shape of the Creative Space

(Los Angeles, CA) It's not your father's gallery or even last year's gallery for that matter. The Container Yard (TCY) is breaking the mold and deconstructing the proverbial (gallery) box by setting a new standard for curated experiential, site specific and collaborative events. Already a haven for street artists, the creative space is proud to announce collaborations with Aiseborn and Stones Throw. "Worth the Weight" a solo art show by Aiseborn will showcase his signature style seamlessly incorporating street art, contemporary, graffiti, classic, futurism, and Romanesque. The opening reception is Thursday, September 22nd, from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. The show will be up until October 20, 2016. The reception is by invitation only. To RSVP visit the website. On Friday, September 23rd DJs Mayer Hawthorne / Dam-Funk / Peanut Butter Wolf / Ras G will perform from 7 p.m. – 12:00 a.m. Tickets can be purchased on the website. Ash Chan, TCY owner explains his philosophy, "Art needs to be more site specific and experiential. Collaboration is the key element to anything we do at TCY; a marriage of the minds if you will."

About The Container Yard: The Container Yard is a creative space born out of the evolution of the Downtown Los Angeles (DTLA) arts district. Their aim is to create a culture of innovative ideas through new perspectives on what a creative space is and can be; where art can be consumed, unadulterated. TCY takes a thoughtful approach to any collaboration or event that happens in the 60,000 square foot space. It is a destination of ever evolving change with a backdrop of some of the most impressive street art one can find anywhere around the world. The Container Yard is located at 800 E. 4th Street, Los Angeles, CA 90013. For more information visit www.thecontaineryard.com.
