Jim Allchin is an American blues rock guitarist, philanthropist, and a former software executive.

He grew up on a farm in the south, earned MS/Ph.D. degrees from Stanford University and Georgia Institute of Technology, and became a world recognized leader in Computer Science.

And at the same time, Jim played music and created a unique sound that is critically noted for its melodic approach and emotional performance.

Decisions is Jim's third widely distributed solo album.

"WOW, this is quite an album... the stuff dreams are made of."
Washington Blues Society

"He has spent years in the woodshed, honing his skills. The result is nothing short of amazing. He has undoubtedly secured a spot for himself among the world's greatest guitarists."
Reflections In Blue

"...hard-driving blues guitar was
as diverse, mixing blues, rock and jazz,
as it was relentless."
Blues Bytes

".....excellent example of contemporary blues gone wild!"
Blues Lovers United of San Diego

"It is rare for a love of mathematics and music to merge together so wonderfully."
Elmore
