

New State-Of-The-Art 3D Imaging Technology Available for Pets in Bel Air, MD

PRESS RELEASE

Feb 1 2023, Bel Air , Maryland, Homeward Bound Veterinary Services, recently invested in new, state-of-the-art 3D imaging equipment for pets. This 3D imaging platform is the first of its kind and was engineered specifically for companion pets. "Vimago™", is a new type of CT Scanner, that employs patented "High-Definition Volumetric Imaging (or HDVI™)" technology. The proprietary technology allows veterinarians to see incredibly detailed high-resolution images of their patients. Lesions as fine as a human hair are easily visible with the device.

The Vimago™ imaging platform uses much less radiation than standard CT systems on the market, making it a safer option for staff and patients. With the ability to scan the entire body of a veterinary patient in just minutes, veterinarians are able to diagnose patients more precisely and begin treatment faster.

"I couldn't be more excited to provide this ground breaking technology to our clients and their pets." Commented Dr. Kristen Vance owner of Homeward Bound Veterinary Services. "Our mission has always been based on offering the best quality care with compassion. The Vimago allows us to practice a new level of medicine and give our clients the answers they need to make the best decisions for their pets."

According to Greg Stoutenburgh, Founder of Epica Animal Health "The Vimago's HDVI is a new type of CT technology that provides better 3D resolution, enabling doctors to clearly see what is normal and abnormal with vastly better confidence and accuracy. That is a difference that can save lives, and something we're incredibly passionate about at Epica Animal Health."

"I am thrilled to use this technology for our patients." Said Dr. Alicia Sorum. "The Vimago TM is a cost effective solution that makes it affordable to use on nearly every case. The 3D images help pet owners to better understand their pet's situation, making it easier for them to choose the best treatment option."
